

The Mystery of the Blue Jerseys

By Wyatt McDonald

One day at school while I was going to basketball practice, I realized that all of the jerseys were blue instead of red, white, and black. I wondered to myself why they were blue. So I asked the principal why the jerseys were blue, but he didn't know why. So I decided to bring in the team (which is Roberto, Sage, and Garrett.) We started to investigate.

First we went to the locker room, which was the most obvious spot to check for clues. We found someone in the locker room. We asked for his name and where he was yesterday. He told us his name and his name was Ashton, but he wouldn't tell us his last name and where he was yesterday, so we wrote him down on the suspect list. We went to the "blue " jerseys and looked for fingerprints. We asked Ashton for his fingerprints to see if the fingerprints were a match. Once they were dusted for fingerprints, there weren't any fingerprints on the blue jerseys.

Then we decided to investigate the park because it was the best place to look for evidence. This time we found a girl. It looked like she was trying to hide something. We asked what she was doing but she said "uh... nothing." We asked what she was hiding, but she wouldn't let us see it at all. We asked her name and where she was yesterday. Her name was Lauren Brown and she was at school yesterday. We hid until she left then we looked to see what she was hiding. When we looked in the bush it was a spray can, so we decided to put it in the evidence bag.

Next we went to the school to see if anybody saw someone last night. We asked a young man that is in my class and his name was Jeff. We asked him if he saw anyone last night. He said that he saw Lauren and Ashton in the locker room with the gym teacher, and the gym teacher disliked black, white, and red and loved the color blue. Then he said that Lauren gave the P.E teacher the spray can, which was a clue, and handed it to him. We told him that's all we needed to know.

Lastly, we went to find Lauren, Ashton, and the gym teacher. But there was a problem; school was almost out. We had to hurry if we wanted to catch them. We found all of the culprits they asked what we were doing and we said, "I think you know what we are doing." The next morning I was happy that we solved the case of the blue jerseys.
